TALLVINE'S MARINE INFRASTRUCTURE PLATFORM EXPANDS TO WEST COAST WITH LIND MARINE ACQUISITION

Miami, FL — Tallvine Partners (“Tallvine”) has acquired Lind Marine, LLC (“Lind Marine”), expanding Tallvine’s North American marine infrastructure platform. This addition follows the Miami-based investment firm’s acquisition of Donjon Marine, LLC (“Donjon Marine”) in September of last year.

Headquartered in the San Francisco Bay Area, Lind Marine is a marine services provider of essential marine infrastructure solutions including towing, salvage, dredging, shipyard, and environmental remediation along with other marine services.

“The acquisition of Lind Marine marks an important step in scaling our North American marine infrastructure platform,” said Thomas Lefebvre, Partner & CEO of Tallvine Partners. “Lind Marine is highly complementary to this platform, expanding its geographic footprint into the West Coast and diversifying the customer base. We are thrilled to partner with Christian Lind and the Lind Marine team and look forward to supporting the company’s expansion plans.”

Founded in 1906, Lind Marine operates out of its shipyard base on Mare Island which includes a 400-foot drydock and consists of a fleet of 40 vessels and over 120 employees. The company serves a customer base of industrial operators, utilities, municipalities, government agencies, and waterfront owners. The company will continue to operate under the Lind Marine brand.

Victor Sosa, Partner at Tallvine Partners, added: “Lind Marine will play a key role in broadening our platform’s capabilities. We look forward to partnering with the Lind Marine team to support the company’s continued growth, invest in fleet additions, execute strategic acquisitions in the region and foster the sharing of capabilities and expertise across the platform.”

With a combined total of close to 200 years of experience, the addition of Lind Marine extends Tallvine’s geographic footprint of its marine infrastructure platform to the West Coast, adding to Donjon Marine’s operations across the East Coast and the Great Lakes.

"Partnering with Tallvine marks a pivotal new chapter for Lind Marine, and I couldn't be more energized about what lies ahead," said Christian Lind, CEO of Lind Marine. "Their long-term vision and deep infrastructure expertise aligns perfectly with our own ambitions."
