Hillside, NJ — Donjon Marine Co., LLC, a leading provider of marine salvage, towing, and heavy-lift services, has been awarded an indefinite delivery/indefinite quantity (IDIQ) contract by the Naval Sea Systems Command (NAVSEA) in response to solicitation N00024-25-R-4306. The contract, managed by the Supervisor of Salvage and Diving (SUPSALV), carries an estimated total ceiling value of $215 million.

Donjon Marine has been continuously awarded the primary NAVSEA SUPSALV contract for salvage services in the Western Hemisphere since 1980.

The contract covers Zone A which encompasses the North and South Atlantic Ocean, Gulf of America, the Mediterranean, Black, and Baltic Seas, and the Suez Canal, together with all harbors and navigable waters draining to the coast within these areas — including the Mississippi River and the Great Lakes.

The award positions Donjon as a key commercial partner supporting the U.S. Navy's global salvage, diving, towing, and search-and-recovery capabilities, reinforcing the company's long-standing role in maritime emergency response and ocean engineering services.

"This award is a testament to Donjon's proven expertise and readiness to support critical Navy missions around the world," said Donjon CEO John A. Witte. "We are proud to continue our partnership with NAVSEA and SUPSALV in delivering the highest level of salvage and marine services wherever and whenever they are needed."

About the Contract

Issued by NAVSEA Headquarters in Washington, D.C., the contract covers a broad scope of operational and non-operational services, including:

- Emergency salvage and salvage-related towing
- Harbor clearance
- Heavy-lift operations
- Point-to-point towing
- Ocean engineering support

Under the terms of the contract, Donjon will maintain the capability to perform at least two simultaneous operations across these zones and meet strict response-time requirements for emergency situations, while complying with all applicable cabotage laws in each operational region.
